

Publishing a WebPlus Website

After you have finished making a website in WebPlus the site needs to be published. This creates a version of the site that could be used as an actual website.

Publishing is essential. If you don't publish websites you get no marks.

How to publish

1. Save your work first
2. Click File > Publish Site > Publish to Disk Folder

You need to say where you want to save the website.

3. Click the Choose Folder button (top right)
4. If an error message occurs click OK

If you have previously published a website you might already be somewhere inside your own user area. In this case you might be able to navigate to a folder to save in.

Otherwise

5. Click on your user name
6. Find the pair of user names. Click on the first one
7. Find the project folder to publish your work in
8. Click on the New Folder button (bottom left)
9. Give the folder a sensible name and press Enter
10. Click OK to publish your work
11. Once the work has published a box will appear. Click the View site in web browser button. Check the site.

In particular you need to check:

- Rollover images are not fuzzy
- Photo galleries work properly – do they autoplay? Do they show at all?
- Text at the bottom of text boxes isn't cut off

NOTE: Videos will only play in Google Chrome
